

Social Media Strategy

Part of Digital Marketing Essentials · Estimated time: 35 min

Introduction

A social media strategy starts with matching a platform to where your actual audience already spends time and what kind of content they go there expecting — not posting the same thing everywhere.

Core ideas

- Different platforms have different norms: short-form video, professional networking, visual inspiration — posting content that fights the platform's format usually underperforms.
- A content calendar, planned even loosely a few weeks ahead, tends to beat sporadic high-effort posts because consistency builds an audience that returns.
- Engagement (likes, comments, shares) is a means to an end — it feeds the platform's algorithm and builds trust, but it isn't the actual business goal.
- It's usually better to do one or two platforms well than to spread thin attempting a presence everywhere.

Try it yourself

Pick one platform your target audience uses. Sketch a two-week content calendar (just titles/topics, not full posts) that mixes at least three different content types (e.g. tips, behind-the-scenes, customer stories).

Further reading

- Hootsuite — Social Media Strategy Guide

<https://blog.hootsuite.com/social-media-strategy-template/>

- Sprout Social — Social Media Strategy

<https://sproutsocial.com/insights/social-media-strategy/>

ModuloTrainer reading material — return to the app to mark this module complete.